We believe in a positive impact

“I believe that a company can have an impact in the world, through the people that work in it and that act in their community, as private and also as business-men and business-women.

Clore has this attitude in its DNA, because our business is to find the way to assure a long life to the objects, bringing them toward those markets ready to appreciate and give them still a last concrete value.

We want to respect the world, that no needs further wastes, and respect the people and the environment where we live.

The new products, leftover and overstock of the last seasons, with us, have a new place in the world.”
